Judges Comments:

A very strong class, perhaps reflective of vintage conditions. Most wines have a purity of fruit and fine acid line, which give brightness and vibrance. Very few obvious faults, but some intrusive SO2 levels. Happy Judges.

Some ripper styles here with the Burgundian style showing out with a few old style Aussies. Good fun and some good discussion about the class.

Judges Comments: Disappointing class to judge, many wines showing dominant phenolics of poor residual sugar handling to cover this. Leaving natural sugar after ferment may help this situation. The top wine shows balanced phenolics, residual sugar and acid, the result is balance and finesse.

Oak is an important aspect of this class, but many wines show overuse of oak and are disappointed accordingly. The best wines have judicious use of oak to add complexity. Volatility and microbial spoilage a problem in several non award winning wines.

Judges Comments: Oak should be a support to fruit, not the other way around. Oak does not fade over time, fruit does. If a wine is over oaked when it is young, it will only become tired, hard and dried out before its time. Oak is also expensive and excessive oak that serves no purpose to the wines seems like a waste. This money could be useful for other things, like analysis which may lead to better overall wine condition and therefore a greater prosperity for aging.

Judges Comments: Some real winemaking faults here, microbial, volatility the lot. Wine 2 meets the criteria well. Where are the soft Beaujolais and Gamay styles to make this class more exciting and serious in years to come. This is a niche market that can be filled with wines of this ilk, but makers are not game enough to produce it.

What a joy. To judge the best class, at the home of Muscat was magnificent. Great discussion on the best wine with wine 10 getting the prize. Various styles however received gold and it was very difficult to pick the ultimate winner.
